

- ✚ You wish to become a decisive figure in the international exchanges inherent in the wine growing and producing industry
- ✚ You hold a degree equivalent to a Bachelor of Science (BSc) in one of the following fields:
Biology, Chemistry, Agronomy, Food Science, Economics
- ✚ You have a good level in English and in French (or you are prepared to acquire a good level rapidly)

Join our International Master Vintage programme !

- ❖ An internationally-recognised programme of excellence: Has held the European quality label "Erasmus Mundus" since 2005
- ❖ A 20 year-old consortium of internationally renown: Created in 1991, this consortium is made up of 9 European universities and partnerships with universities in Chile and South Africa
- ❖ An all-round multi-disciplinary training course: The course covers all aspects of the wine production chain from the grape in a local wine region to the glass in the hand of the international consumer. Studies include: winegrowing, oenology and the economics and organisation of the wine sector. The course combines marketing, technology and new languages, with an interactive pedagogy and interventions by international experts in the sector.
- ❖ An international course: 6 months in France, 3 months in Portugal, 3 months in Hungary, a study trip in 3 European countries and a final thesis in the European country of your choice.
- ❖ A highly international group of human dimension: To join the International Master Vintage is to become part of a group of more than 15 nationalities with a class limited to 30 students. It means spending 2 years together in Europe creating strong bonds through the shared experience of learning 2 new languages, attending the same classes, working in teams on projects, visiting and taking trips together. These bonds will become an essential part of your international network for your future career.
- ❖ A network on 105 graduates all over the world occupying key positions in the international winegrowing and producing business.
- ❖ An active business network in the winegrowing and producing sector. To be a student in the International Master Vintage programme also means having an immediate experience of the professional world as well as a privileged contact with the companies who are members of our "Vintage Master Business Club".
- ❖ Professional positions with responsibility bringing together technical skills and strategic know-how in the winegrowing and producing sector: 80% of graduates are employed before graduation day!

For further information see: www.vintagemaster.com

Contacts:

Mrs. Catherine Pellier, in charge of international recruitment, c.pellier@groupe-esa.com, Ph. 33.2.41.23.55.15

Download the admission materials here: <http://www.vintagemaster.com/article751.html>
For candidates eligible for an Erasmus Mundus grant the final application deadline is March 31 2009